Cornèr Bank now open for business in Geneva

On Monday, October 1st 2012, Cornèr Bank's Geneva branch officially opened its doors for the first time. The new branch is located at Rue de Rive 1, on the fifth floor of an elegant building in the city's financial and commercial district. As a result of the transfer of the operations, which focus primarily on private banking, from Lausanne to Geneva, Cornèr Bank is now present in all three of Switzerland's main financial centres: Zurich, Geneva and Lugano, where the Group has its Head Office.

The presence in French-speaking Switzerland dates back to 1974, when the Bank opened its branch in the city of Lausanne. It continued to operate there until September 28th 2012, when the branch was closed as a result of the relocation to Geneva.

Now the Bank gains a foothold in a financial centre with a history of involvement in private banking. This ideally suits an institution which, helped by its size, tradition and experience, has made service to private clients its flagship activity.

Like all the other branches of Cornèr Bank in Switzerland, the Geneva branch is also structured to meet the borrowing requirements of Swiss private and commercial clients.

Geneva's international links will also be very important in enabling Cornèr Bank to explore new markets and diversify its range of products and services. The Bank has already pursued this development policy successfully for a number of years.

The staff formerly employed at Lausanne will continue to fulfil their duties at the new Geneva branch.
